Community Benefits

- Audit trail – You will have a record of every opening and attempted opening of each door or area. The audit trail can be valuable in resolving resident concerns and employee issues, such as resident services and time card disputes.
- Time/day restrictions – Do you have certain areas residents, employees and vendors should only be in at certain times and days. One example is employee or vendor access to resident homes. If services are only provided from 8am – 5pm then it makes more sense to restrict their access to those times than to give them a key that allows access at any time or day.
- Lost or stolen keys – When keys are lost, stolen or not returned by residents, employees or vendors, it is an expensive process for a community to completely rekey each door. And it can be a security risk if the locks are not rekeyed. Access control systems allow you to easily remove access by deactivating the I.D. badge or other security credential. This can save your community time, money and prevent losses.
- Remote access control – Many systems allow for control of all of the community door locks from one main system. With these systems, you can easily and quickly lock down your community in an emergency as well as add and remove credentials at anytime.
